Despite France's desire to keep the Little Entente close by its side, the opinion in competent circles here is that M. The consensus of opinion is that France's attitude in the League Council regarding Corfu indicated quite clearly the policy it will pursue in connection with Fiume. Quai d'Orsay realizes the striking similarity between the Ruhr and Corfu occupations, and knows that if it supported England and the small powers, including the Little Entente, in their efforts to bring the Italo-Greek dispute before the League. it would at once have to prepare to defend its Ruhr policy before that international This France has not the least

M. Haguenin is also said to have been authorized to discuss the resumption of reparations in kind, of stone and timber. The reappointment of a German Ambassador to Paris is also indicated, and the name of Dr. Joseph Wirth, the late Chancellor, is mentioned in this connection. The Nationalists, in the meanwhile, are preparing to offer strenuous opposition. The Deutsche Zeitung, the Pan-German organ, declares: "Capitula-tion is on its way." The Kreuz Zeitung, Conservative organ, says that the Government is on the "downward path." Pressure is also being brought to summon the Reichstag, though the Government considers this would involve delay at the moment when instant action alone can prevent a catastrophe. How urgent is the situation was brought out by Herr Erkelenz, one of the Democratic leaders, in a speech at Hildesheim on Sunday, when he showed that passive resist-ance now costs the Reich three gold marks daily for every man in the Ruhr, whether young or old; also, that the German Government's total expenditure last month reached the colossal figure of $2,000,000,000.000 marks in a single day, only 1/4 per cent of which was raised by taxation. build and maintain their roadways an hour, for the good of the truck, Unemployment is increasing seriously. the good of the load, and the safety although under the present legislation firms are not allowed to dismiss their Three have come to grief, falling into hands until all are working short All the speakers agreed that com- time. IN ANNUAL MEETING

Radical Element of Labor Congress Demands Wider Scope of Operations

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 12 (Special)—Few frills marked the opening of the annual convention of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, which is meeting here all the week. The president, Tom Moore of Ottawa, is presiding. Great Britain is repre-sented by Frank Hodges, secretary of the Miners' Federation, and the American Federation of Labor by Walter Reddick, president of the Bookbinders' International Union.

The chief fight of the convention is expected to center around the proposal from the radical element that the scope of the Labor Congress should be changed to permit of greater autonomy, industrial unionism and po-litical action. These questions will be dealt with in the following resolu-tions presented by the resolutions committee today to replace several other resolutions on the same subject presented by various unions:

Your resolutions committee has given careful consideration to the contents of resolutions 34 to 40, and owing to the contradictory and complex character covering such a wide field have deemed it advisable to divide the same, dealing with economic, industrial and political questions separately, and herewith sub-mit two resolutions as substitutes for the entire matter covered in the resolu-

Concerning the economic and industrial policy of the congress, the fol-lowing resolution was submitted:

That the Trades and Labor Congress hereby reiterates its adhesion to the present form of organization, providing as it does machinery for the closer co-ordination of international craft unions which, in the opinion of your committee, has worked so successfully in the past and has been the means of very materially improving the wages and the working conditions of the workers not only in the Dominion of Canada, but on the American con-

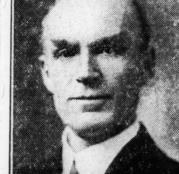

The second resolution, dealing with political action, read:

Therefore be it resolved, That Labor's political automony be left in hands of the established Labor political parties, and inasmuch as the platform of the principles of this congress contains an epitome of the best thought of organized Labor during the whole period of its existence and struggles, that this congress continues to act as the legiscongress continues to act as the legislative mouthpiece for organized Labor in Canada, independent of any political organization engaged in the effort to send representatives of the people to Parliament, provincial legislatures and other elective bodies of this country

PRESIDENT DECIDES TO PRESS SENATE TO VOTE ON COURT

Rumors That Issue Will Be Permitted to Languish in Committee Room False

Mr. Coolidge Will Rely on Personal Friendship and Support of Democrats

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE WASHINGTON, Sept. 12-President tion of dropping the World Court issue. In due course, he will ask the Senate to adopt Warren G. Harding's recommendation for American admission to the tribunal. It will be one of Mr. Coolidge's major programs in his first bout with Congress.

The World Court may be the theme of his first message to Capitol Hill. If not that, it is certain to be the text of one of his earliest communications. It will lay special emphasis on the fact that Congress is being asked to do something Mr. Harding would have requested. Mr. Coolidge is aware that the Court issue was his predecessor's main theme and the incumbent of the White House may not be expected to shipwreck so conspicuous a portion of "Harding policies."

Hitherto the anticourt group in the Senate has caused it to be understood that "the Coolidge plan" was to let the issue rest in peace in a pigeon hole of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's Commit-tee on Foreign Relations. A majority of the committee is said to be categorically opposed to the court and in favor of never reporting it out of their hands for action on the Senate floor. If President Coolidge, as the irrecou-cilables have credited him with an intention of doing, permitted the Foreign Relations Committee thus to bury the court he would in effect be conniving at its interment. That, this writer is very definitely assured, is exactly what he does not intend to do.

Senate Friendships Useful

Through his presiding officership of the Senate, Mr. Coolidge has many and strong ties there. He will utilize SENATORS DECLARE them to insure passage of the Court program. He, of course, will command a very considerable Democratic support for it. President Harding Mr. Willis and Mr. Fess Advise was required to rely heavily on Democratic votes in the Senate for a twothirds ratification majority for the Washington Conference treaties. The present Administration will not scorn opposition support on the forthcoming occasion any more than Mr. Harding did in March, 1922.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12—The welfare program of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union would have to be scrapped, as well as its uniformly futile. On no public question has he so completely lived up to his reputation for taciturnity. But men who have been favored with the President's confidences are convinced he is "sound" on the court proposition. He is considered "sound" not only because of his public pledge to carry out Harding policies but "sound," it is felt, because of the practical politics of the

> To ditch, sidetrack or shelve the gress, who believed with the late President and Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State, that American entry is desirable. As an ardent Harding Court supporter puts it, the obligation to support Mr. Coolidge would cease automatically if the President turned his back on the Court.

Will Follow Pledge

On another "Harding policy" Presiident Coolidge will stick to the "letter and spirit" of his pledge uttered in the earliest hours after his predecessor's passing. Mr. Coolidge will veto any soldiers' bonus measure that does not carry with it provision for its own financing. In other words, unless there is a sales tax provision, or something equally effective. President Coolidge will adhere to the "Harding olicy" of opposing the bonus.

Andrew W. Mellon, it was currently understood, would have left the Sec retaryship of the Treasury had Mr Harding signed a bonus bill that did not sustain itself. Mr. Mellon hardly would remain in the Coolidge Cabinet under any other circumstances. The loss of Mr. Mellon's co-operation in his Administration is one of the last things Calvin Coolidge is thinking about

Not many weeks before President Harding passed on he expressed to an intimate friend complete, and even vehement, indifference as to "party harmony" if it depended upon his abandoning the World Court. "The vice-president, said that it was "Not fair that party politics should step in to smash on that issue, the better," was what President Harding said in effect. There is not authority for saying tha Calvin Coolidge holds those views. But Mrs. Gleason rose to defend herCourt before the next Christmas Reactionary Tone in Stock Market 10 self from the charge of party politics. snows have fallen-on that score, this

Today, between League as the irreconcilable Republi-cans of the Senate. Their opposition was based mainly on the contention that the League guaranteed to member nations the status-quo of their home territories and colonial and dominion possessions. Ireland's sons in America considered that the League forever blasted the hopes of Irish home-rule and yoked Erin for eternity to the British Crown. For that reason, and for the additional reason that Wood-Wilson failed to bring Erin's cause before the Paris Peace Conference, the "Irish vote" in 1920 went almost solidly to Mr. Harding and Mr. Coolidge. A year later the Irish Free State was set up, and Irish-American hostility to the League gradually disappeared. If the League is an issue in 'Irish vote" is likely to go to the party that is pro-League.

There are still anti-League Irish in the United States, though they are overwhelmingly in the minority. They belong to the De Valera group which espouses a republic for Ireland instead of a "Free State" appendage of Great Britain. Probably this remnant of Irish-American anti-Leaguers see vindication of their viewpoint in the at Ottawa—the Irish Free State is not likely to lag far behind in seeking League's failure to act in the Italian-Grecian crisis. They are likely to argue that if the League of Nations ould not or would not prevent Italy from oppressing Greece, it is even less likely to restrain a Great Britain that some day might bully the Irish Free

PHYSICIANS REPUDIATE ALCOHOL; Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Organia, Orga TERM IT "DISCREDITED DRUG"

Survey Shows 78 Per Cent of Nation's Doctors Refused to Use It in Combating Disease—Cite Its Dangers

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12 (Staff Correspondence)—In the accelerated campaign of the liquor forces to stem the advance of world-wide prohibition, an old argument expected to carry weight when all else has failed is being seized upon by paid defenders of the wets. It is that alcohol cannot be banned entirely by civilized nations because alcohol is indispensable as a medicine.

To meet that argument there has been prepared a report based on one of the most exhaustive studies ever made of the rise and fall of alcohol as a stimulant by proving conclusively that alcohol came out of the severe tests of the scientists a discredited drug. The Carnegie Institute gave the last hard blow at the old superstitions of alcohol as a stimulant by proving conclusively that alcohol is heart depressant not the severe servers.

of the most exhaustive studies ever made of the rise and fall of alcohol as a therapeutic agent. The report shows that reputable physicians the world over have consigned whiskey, brandy and other liquors to the great army of discredited "cure alls".

The report was prepared by Mrs. Martha M. Allen, superintendent of Medical Temperance for the World's and National Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The latter society is now in session in this city. The report reviews the history of alcohol in medication from early times, showing how gradually physicians began to doubt its value, and then, often in the face of ridicule and scorn, banished it entirely.

Times Have Changed

The beginning of it was the stubborn refusal of total abstainers here and there to take alcholic liquors in illness, there to take alcholic liquors in illness, with subsequent quick recovery where it was thought certain death awaited them without it. This was what awakened some of the leading physicians of England. A few cholera patients absolutely refused to take brandy, and they were wrapped in blankets and left to die. To the astonishment of the attending physicians they recovered more rapidly and surely than those well supplied with brandy.

This led to experiments in hospitals with and without alcohol, and in every case the death rate was smaller when no liquor was given. Medical men beno liquor was given. Medical men began to publish the results of their experiments, and the big brewers, who supported the hospitals quite largely, threatened to withdraw their patronage if such injury to their business were continued. This action of the brewers led to the establishment of a hospital in London where physicians could pursue their investigations free of the influence of the beer trade.

The London Temperance Hospital thus began its notable career. For over 50 years it has demonstrated that dis-

Chicago. He was the founder of the American Medical Association, and the first editor of its journal. Early in his professional life he began to distrust the claims made for alcoholic liquors as curative agents, and he made the first scientific studies of alcohol carried on in this country. For years he was made a butt of ridicule by associates in the medical profession, who called him a "cold water fanatic," as did English physicians the great Sir B. W. Richardson, who lent the glory of his name to the London Temperance Hospital.

January, 1921, report that the quantity used there is almost negligible. This is true also of many other hospitals of whom inquiry has been made.

In September, 1920, alcoholic liquors were dropped from the medical supplies bought for the United States Navy. The reason assigned was that navy doctors were using almost no alcohol in treating the sick.

Surgeon-General Ireland of the army said, in answer to a query, "My opinion is that whisky and brandy are not essential in the treatment of the sick."

A great influence in the dethrone-ment of alcohol from its kingdom of A great influence in the dethronement of alcohol from its kingdom of medicine was the invention of scientific instruments for judging accurately the effect of different drugs upon the human body, and with that the interest in the alcohol question resulting from the introduction into the school system of the different states of the study of the effects of alcohol upon the body as found by the earlier students of this subject such as Richardson, Newell Martin of Johns Hopkins, A. B. Palmer of Ann Arbor, and others who were declaring that alcohol was not a stimulant, but a heart depressant, that it was not a food but a poison, that it hindered digestion instead of aiding it, that it robbed the body of heat instead of adding to its heat, and setting forth other startling ideas which begot bitter opposition both with medical men and educators. To offset this teaching in the schools, introduced by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, medical scientists in different places, and in different countries, were urged to study thoroughly the effects of alcohol upon the human body.

The result of these manifold studies

NICARAGUANS WAIT BUILDING OF CANAL

Construction of Waterway Called Test of America's Good Faith in Republic

By WALLACE THOMPSON

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Aug. 26— The American "intervention," as they call it here, began in Nicaragua in 1912, when, at the request of the Nicaraguan Government, American marines landed and made their way to this capital to protect Americans and their property during a revolu-tionary outbreak. But long before that Americans had their part in Nicaraguan affairs. When the gold rush to California began in 1849, Com-modore Vanderbilt inaugurated a line of transport across Nicaragua, by river steamer from the Atlantic side up the San Juan (with one transfer around the rapids) and across Lake Nicaragua and over the narrow strip of land to the Pacific, where ship was taken again for San Francisco. Thousands of gold seekers and travelers crossed during the 30 years prior to the opening of the Union Pacific Railway across the continent.

It was this opening of communications via Nicaragua that undoubtedly brought on the invasion of William Walker, a San Francisco editor, and generally believed here in Nicaragua with a people whom they understand, that he sought to extend the slave and whose good faith they appreciate territory of the United States. Today the United States is working out, hand in hand with Nicaragua, one of the great problems of our time—the problem of the helping of a weak nation by a strong one, without absorption, moral, commercial or physical. They both—so far as the present governments of the United States and Nicaragua are concerned—are trying with the greatest conceivable good faith, to have the plan work successfully, and, although the road is far from covered yet, both nations are learning many things which will be of Besides Colonel Ham there is now a high commission in charge of the pay-ment of old debts and the supervision. in a way, of the national budget. The American member of the commission is Roscoe R. Hill, whose advice and help have meant much to the administration of affairs, and whose rela-tions are close and friendly.

As a result of all this, there has grown up a situation of tensity in some quarters and of genuine national pride in others. The opposition is critical of the presence of the legation guard of 125 American marines, who raise the American flag each morning and lower it each night, while the Nicaraguan garrison across the com-pound exchanges the courtesies of the salute, flag to flag. There is also the assertion that the only function of the marines is to maintain the present Conservative Government in power, as they undoubtedly help to do in the virtual prevention of any kind of revo-Jution, by their mere presence, although not with any use of force.
On the other side is the astonishing and very wonderful attitude of the Conservative Government, an attitude not of subservience in any way, but

Lieut. Joel H. Benson at Present Is Providing Sustenance for 60 Russian Orphans

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 28 (Special Correspondence)-Lieut. Joel H. Benson, chaplain in the Navy, attached to the U.S. S. Denebola, informs the Constantinople correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor that his feeding station for orphans at the old Imperial Russian Embassy in Pera will be discontinued on Oct. 1. Arrangements have been made to send the children to America and Bulgaria. At present Chaplain Benson is providing food for 60 Russian orphans.

Relief Work Is Discontinued The report that the American Relief Administration was still operating in Constantinople and the villages on the European side of the Dardanelles is not correct. The American Relief Association discontinued its relief work in April and has turned over to the Red Cross the remaining funds.

This money is being used toward the expenses of the Russian evacuation. The refugee section of the League of Nations Secretariat and the Constantinople chapter of the American Red Cross have sent more than 17,000 Russians to the Balkans, France, and the United States. One argument in its favor will not down: the United States is dumping annually a horde of uneducated forcigners on the various states, and the Federal Government must share in their education by assisting those states. We need to face our educational problem squarely, and that is precisely what the Towner-Sterling Bill does. It compre-hends a national need and supplies the remedy.

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 12-Play today in the golf tournament of the United States Seniors' Golf Association on the links of the Apawamis Golf Club is expected to shed some light on the ques-tion of who is to be the 1923 champion. Today's test will be an 18-hole affair. The second half of the field will play tomorrow and Friday the title will go the veteran having the low gross for the 36 holes.

The tournament opened vesterday with practically 200 players, coming from all sections of the country, teeing off, and with a few exceptions all of them turned in cards. Frederick Snare, Garden City, led the field with a score of 78, only seven over par. This gave him a margin of three strokes over his nearest rivals for the low gross honors

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—The Brooklyn
National Club today announced the unconditional release of Catcher Bernard diungling and Pitcher C. E. Brown to the Des Moines Club of the Western league.
The club has recalled Outfielder Turner
Barber from Atlanta: Infielder Walter
Keeley, from Greenville. S. C.; Infielder
William Mullen, from Bridgeport. Conn., and Infielder Ray Schmandt from Houston.
Tex. Mullen will report next week, but the others will not report until next spring at training camp.

The official scorer in New York City has had some hard ones to call, what with that dubious hit of T. R. Cobb's last season, which raised the Detroiter's average to just .300, and the single accredited to L. W. Witt in the first inning yesterday. Coming later in the game that hit might have gone as an error, as indeed Joseph Tinker, the former Cub shortstop, said it should, but the scorer refused to change his decision, as was only correct.

RANCE has suddenly become similar to a previous book! more interested in fish, due to more interested in fish, due to the exhibition now being held in Boulogne. The purpose of this "Fish Week" is to make fish as an article of food more popular, and therefore give an impetus to the fishing industry. It has come as a great surprise to Frenchmen that five times more fish is consumed in England than in France. One result of the Boulogne exhibition will be the introduction in franc. What is true is that France in its special relations with Germany at this time does not encourage any attempts at interven-tion on the part of the League or of other governments or indeed of any body or persons. The attitude of the French Government may be described as entirely friendly toward the League but opposed to its intervention in disputes arising out of the Versailles Treaty. This is because it regards the settlement effected at Versailles to be one which must be executed and no softening of feelings or alliance of interests such as there may be in any international grouping can be permitted to interfere with the ful-It took three strenuously contested sets before Miss Molly Thayer and Miss But when this reservation is made Dorothy Dixon of Philadelphia could eliminate the Scharman sisters of New Vank 24 general helper processory before League which may yet become a val-uable instrument in the preservation of peace. > Pierre Benoît is accused of plagiarism. Every book of his which has appeared has been alleged to be a copy of an earlier volume. The inspiration for "L'Atlantide" was found to be in Sir Rider Haggard's "She."
> When M. Benoît wrote "Le Sac Salé" he deliberately inserted passages from Victor Hugo in order to catch the critics who were always looking for his sources. They fell into the trap. His latest work "Mademoiselle de la Ferté" is ridiculously stated to be an imitation of Eugène Sue's "Atar-Gull." As, however, the leading figure in "Atar-Gull" is a black man and the leading figure in Pierre Benoît's book is a beautiful woman, it is hard to see how the resemblance of a few incidents can constitute a charge of plagiarism. Moreover Eugène Sue wrote extremely badly and his characters had no consistency, whereas Pierre Benoît writes well and his those in the literary world who are not well disposed toward M. France will not have to import in France. One result of the Boulogne tentment. In spite of the fall of the duction and the necessity of importa-tion was felt to be dangerous. France strives to be self-sufficing. It is with gratification therefore that this year Not without effort has this result been reached. The weather conditions have been favorable but it is because the turists and conducted an intensive propaganda among the small farmers that the crops are so plentiful.

It is now clear that there is little chance of the proposed tax being put upon foreigners. There are deputies who strongly advocate this theory of making the visitor pay, but it is generally recognized that they are short-sighted. The visitors to France bring in a great deal of money and almost entirely support a number of French trades. It would be bad business to discourage that. A certain revenue might be raised, but it would be lost and much more than lost in other ways, if the number of tourists were

By the end of this year Marshal Lyautey expects to have completed his task in French Morocco and may then hand over the reins of government to a civil administrator. There is now only spasmodic opposition except in one or two parts which are steadily being reduced to submission. It has been a long and arduous task undertaken by the marshal, and he has fulfilled it with the greatest possible distinction. His name will be inseparably associated with Morocco It is not too much to say that he is the maker of modern Morocco. Un-fortunately the Spanish zone is still disturbed and the French have not altogether abandoned the hope of some day inheriting the little northern tract. They would at any rate like to have an early settlement of the long-drawn-out question of Tangiers. + + + Meanwhile the reports from Syria continue to be good and it is expected with great confidence that a civil administration will be instituted within a few months. Now that there is a settlement with Turkey—whether good or bad is not to the point—it is considered that there is no danger to be feared and that the new protectorate will quickly settle down. The credit must chiefly go to General Gouraud, now military governor of Paris, but General Weygand, who completed the work after General Gouraud left, must also be given his share of credit.

the papers were until lately incidental and occasional. Maurice Barres, it is true, for a number of years has de-voted himself almost entirely to journalism. But the point is that no one has ever been chosen purely on his journalistic merits. No journalist as such has ever been admitted. He has had to produce his books, even though those books were merely collections of recognized that the quality of journalism in France has been raised very considerably; and that there are, writing for the newspapers today, many men who have not the smallest desire or the leisure to fling together indifferent volumes, but whose work is of a higher quality than most of those who sit beneath the cupola. The Columbia, built on the lines of the Mayflower, which was disqualified for international competition last year and the year before, has been regarded as the logical contender for the international trophy.

The Henry Ford, runner-up to the Bluenose last year and winner of the Lipton Cup in the race held off this port in August in connection with ways, if the number of tourists were reduced. Moreover, the foreigner does pay taxes and very handsomely. It must be remembered that France is a country which above all imposes indirect taxes, that is to say, on everything that is bought and sold the Government levies its toll. The luxury trades which are supported by the visitor contribute very largely. The restaurants and the places of amusement are heavily taxed. It would be unfair to impose a direct tax in addition to the indirect taxes.

STOCKS SELL OFF ABRUPTLY IN NEW YORK

After Early Irregularity Prices Are Forced Downward-Steels Weak

Price changes were mixed at the opening of today's New York stock market. U. S. Steel, Baldwin and Studebaker, the usual leaders, all opened A fractionally lower, but the main trend fractionally lower, but the main trend nevertheless appeared to be upward. Davison Chemical advanced 2 points. Most of the oils were higher, Houston rising a point.

The market continued somewhat spotty in the early dealings. Good buying was noted in some of the sugar, textile and copper shares. International Agricultural preferred dropped 2 points and Famous Players and Maxwell A, 1 each.

Hartman Corporation advanced 2 points, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred 1½ and Punta Alegre 1.

Foreign exchanges opened irregular, German marks dropping to less than 1 cent a million, a new low record for the year.

Short Selling

Considerable short selling and profit-taking came into the market during the morning after an early period of hesitation, and the general list lost ground. Resistance was offered, however, in a number of quarters, particularly by shares in the sugar, merchandising and low-priced rail groups, several of which maintained their gains of a point or so. Heaviness was most marked in the oils, steels, equipments, motors and a

Heaviness was most marked in the cils, steels, equipments, motors and a few specialties, such as American Can, Du Pont and Foundation Company, which sold 1 to 2 points below yesterday's final figures.

Call money opened at 5 per cent. Railroad shares succumbed more generally to the heaviness elsewhere in the early afternoon, New York Central, Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern Railway, Texas & Pacific and St. Paul pfd., lossing in the neighborhood of a point-each. The Pan-American shares staged a sharp rally, but most other industrials and specialties lost ground. Central Leather pfd. dropped 5½ points.

pfd., lossing in the neighborhood of a point each. The Pan-American shares staged a sharp rally, but most other industrials and specialties lost ground. Central Leather pfd. dropped 5½ points.

Bonds Rather Soft

With the exception of domestic industrial liens, which showed moderate improvement, bond prices generally inclined downward in the early trading today. Holland-American 6s moved up 1, while Serbian 8s declined 2½, Austrian 7s 1, and numerous French issues trian 7s 1, and numerous French issues fractionally.

U. S. Government bonds were irregular, with changes relatively unimportant.

Declines of a point or more were recorded by Minneapolis & St. Louis refunding 4s. St. Paul convertible 5s, and Northern Pacific refunding 6s. While some industrial liens yielded fractionally, numerous others, notably Pierce Arrow 8s, Denver Gas & Electric 5s, Public Service of New Jersey 5s, Cerro de Pasco 8s, and Otis Steel 7½s, registered advances of a point each.

CONCERNS CAN MEET ORIENT LOSS WELL LONDON, Sept. 12-British insurance circles are unable to approximate figure 26% of Japanese losses, but a leading firm says £2,000,000 is the minimum and £10,000,000 is "certainly too high." This compares with £30,000,000 lost by British companies in the San Francisco ish companies in the San Francisco earthquake.

The chief loss falls to marine companies for goods landed or awaiting shipment, but the London dock strike cut down goods subject to insurance, saving hundreds of thousands of pounds. Cargoes which would have oeen in Yokohama were delayed, and reduction of traffic made deliveries to Japan guicker.

of trame made deliveries to Japan quicker.

All the leading companies are much stronger than in 1906, and the loss of even £10,000,000 can be met without strain. The companies so far are not realizing on securities to meet losses, but are accumulating reserves; and as bonds become due they are not reinvesting.

As seven clearing banks in the last four months reduced their investments over £60,000,000 without depressing the market, it is felt there will be no repercussions on account of the Japanese losses.

Consumption at the mills has been tapering off slowly for several months, dropping from 63,000,000 pounds, grease equivalent, in January last, to 46,000,000 pounds, grease equivalent, in July, the latest month for which United States Government figures are available, the reported consumption representing about 75 per cent of the actual total consumption.

The Boston importers, expecting the vessel bearing their merchandise, to arrive on Sept. 21, made entry under the 1913 law. This was refused in the afternoon because the vessel had not arrived in port. Later on the vessel did arrive but in the meantime the Custom House had closed for the day. The importers protested on the ground that in cases of this kind the Custom House should have remained open later. 7. H. CARTER, president and general manager of the Carter Halls-Aldinger Company, builders and engineers of Winnipeg, Man., is Aldinger Company, builders and engineers of winnipeg, Main, is an outstanding figure in the construction fraternity and a leading Canadian business man. By virtue of having superintended the construction of Winnipeg's handsomest and most imposing buildings, the title of "The Builder of Winnipeg" has been bestowed upon Mr. Carter. It would be equally proper to call him the builder of the west, for since the early days of their history he has been what might be called the "official" builder for four provinces and for a good part of a fifth.

Mr. Carter is a native of the United States, having been reared on a farm at Bignary.

Mr. Carter is a native of the United States, having been reared on a farm at Bismarck, Ill. He remained there with his parents until his early youth, getting a job with M. Yeager & Son of Danville, Ill., and finally becoming timekeeper at the munificent salary of $3 a week. Later he became superintendent of construction for the William Grace Company, Chicago, and it was in that capacity that he was sent to Winnipeg.

He decided to remain in Canada, and in 1907 organized his own company. Its remarkable success is a tribute to his foresight and his possession of that faith in the future of the west which has been the principal cause of its unbuilding.

Mr. Carter is president of the Western Drainage Company, president of the Lake Bar Sand & Gravel Company, director of the Walbridge-Aldinger Company, Detroit, and vice-president of the Sovereign Insurance Company, He was president of the Winnipeg Board of Trade for two terms, 1918 and 1919, and president of the Winnipeg Builders' Exchange for three terms, 1910,

BRITISH COAL MINING RESULTS FOR THE QUARTER

LONDON, Sept. 12-A statistical sum. mary just issued by the British Mines Department shows production costs, proceeds, and profits of the coal mining industry in the quarter ended March 31, 1923. It shows that although the total salable coal raised during the quarter was 67,077,543 tons, compared with 57,633,631 tons in the similar quar-with 57,633.631 tons in the similar quarter in 1922, the total production cost was less, being £51,024,267, compared with £51,704,431 in 1922.

Despite an increase in production, only £35,441,768 was paid in wages, compared with £34,827,123 last year, while the production cost a ton of coal disposable commercially fell from 19s. 8.28d, to 16s, 7.65d, a ton this year. The proceeds of commercial disposals yielded £58,156,716 or 18s. 11,56d, a ton, compared with £54,367,927 in 1922.

The number of persons employed in the mines was 1,087,733, or 67,000 more than in the first quarter of 1922, while

COMMODITY PRICES

PROFITS OF MOST RAILROADS WILL EXCEED 1922 NET

Estimates Based on 7 Months' Results Show Nearly All on Better Earning Basis

The current year will in all likelihood reveal considerable variation in railroad earnings from the average seasonable distribution of previous so-called normal years. In the early months of 1923 traffic was unusually heavy and it is hardly to be expected that the period between spring and fall should have exhibited as great an expansion as it ordinarily does.

One reason is that last year's coal strike left a shortage in its stock of fuel which precluded the usual slump in production this spring. Another was that general commodity buying, likewise to make good a shortage in stocks on hand, proceeded at such a rate during the earlier months of the year as to lead to rising prices and an automatic check upon forward orders.

In cases of railroads earning largely in excess of interest and dividend requirements there has become manifest the disposition to spend somewhat more freely on maintenance, on the perfectly the disposition to spend somewhat more freely on maintenance, on the perfectly sound theory that the time to make repairs is when you have the money. Where the year's business has not developed up to earlier expectations, as in the northwest, railroad managers have pursued the contrary policy of reducing maintenance below earlier proportions.

Most roads have made increases in wages to nearly all employees other.

Most roads have made increases in wages to nearly all employees other than train crews. The latter are now preparing to bring in demands. It happens, therefore, that unit labor costs are somewhat higher for the second nalf of the year than for the first, further affecting seasonal distribution of net earnings.

In the table below the first column In the table below the first column presents estimates of what actual results for 1923 are likely to be, consideration being given to various factors affecting net results for the last five months. The figures represent dollars a share of stock except where the probable result is indicated by a percentage of fixed charges the road is expected to earn.

LACK OF EMPLOYMENT AFFECTS ONE-SEVENTH OF BRITISH NATION

Condition of Labor Curtails Spending Power and Causes United States Imports to Fall Below Exports in Value

out by a prominent employer here, in for the first time in many years, the value of imports into the United States exceeded the value of the exports.

Statistics at the offices of the Deshow that the decline was not only in value but in volume. For example, in 1923 up to July 30 Great Britain took 00 cwt. of wheat flour from the United States. In the corresponding period of 1922 and 1921 the figures were 2,800,000 cwt. and 3,700,000 cwt. respectively. Though trade in some items has shown increases, the balance is heavily against the United States. The employer already quoted was convinced that when American manufacturers once more began to turn to foreign markets as an outlet for their surplus production, they would be confronted with a very serious situation, unless in the mean ime the purchasing power of Great Britain had been restored by the soluon of the unemployment difficulty.

Cause of Unemployment

Most authorities agree that the root cause of British unemployment is the instability of the European situation. To illustrate their contention, take for example a railway in Europe which in normal times would be placing an order for, say 10,000 tons of steel rails with a firm in the north of Eng-The railway badly needs these rails, but owing to present-day conditions, it cannot afford to buy them, and has to carry on as best it can with those in use, although they are practically worn out.

This means that a firm in the north England has lost £100,000 worth of business, representing a good month's work to 750 men. Less ore by 25,000 to 30,000 tons is needed from the mines, and 750 more men have each lost a month's work. Nor does directly affected. There is less work on the railways, at the ports, a smaller present, there have been two separate demand for mining machinery replace-ments, for the steel from which the other Protestant, and Jews and other machinery is made, for the coal used creeds and cults have obtained their at the mines, on the railways and education in Protestant schools, ships, in the production of the iron and steel. Meanwhile the official estimate of amount spent by Great Britain on the maintenance of its unemployed since the war ended is £400,000,000 up to average of over £2,000,000 a week. The numbers of unemployed have diminished very slightly since Sir Montague Barlow gave these figures to the House of Commons in March, and it is probable, therefore, that the rate of expenditure still remains about the same.

Europe's major problems are not given to the League, because Europe's politicians fear the League spirit. The League has made a name for itself, in the midst of widespread chaos, because it represents the ideals of a new order. Why, if the League is to perpetuate the injustice of the Treaty of Versailles, as Mr. Ravage insists, have not the major problems of the Treaty been consigned to it? Why are reparations commissions and councils of ambassadors and conferences of the allied statesmen necessary, when we have statesmen necessary, when we have the League designed especially to do the deviltry which now is otherwise accomplished? The attribution of this piece of sculpture is of utmost importance, quite apart from the fact that Leonardo has not been definitely credited with any work in this medium, for it is of great significance that the child is on the right of his mother. Now, in the Verrocchio reliefs of the same subtact the whild is on the left of the same subtact the whild is on the left of the same subtact the whild is on the left of the same subtact the whild is on the left of the same subtact the whild is on the left of the same subtact the whild is on the left of the same subtact the same ject, the child is on the left. HAVING seized the island of Corfu, at the outlet of the Adriatic Sea, at the cost of the lives of a few Greek women and children who fell victims to his lawless bombardment, Mussolini, the Italian dictator, is apparently preparing for the seizure of Fiume. Holding Trieste already, the acquisition of Fiume will give Italy practical control of the outlet to the sea of all the nations which must use the Adriatic as a highway. Control of Corfu gives dominance over the Adriatic, and makes it practically an Italian lake. Imperialistic Italians naturally will applaud the vigor and defiant audacity of a self-created dictator, who has so easily won so much for their country, but what the outcome of his adventure may be in its bearing upon the future peace of the world is yet to be determined.

Italy, Greece, and the League

The seizure of Fiume, if it shall be consummated this week, as is anticipated, will only be the logical outcome of the virtual immunity which attended the descent upon Corfu; and the latter, in its turn, was but the natural and logical result of the impotence of the allied nations of Europe in the face of the demands of the Turks at Lausanne. In the language of the street, Mussolini saw that the Turks had "got away with it." and adopted the same tactics. Just what nation of Europe, which happens to be land hungry, or which is desirous of soliditying its power at home by imperialistic adventures, will follow in the pathway trodden out by Ismet Pasha, and Mussolini, the Fascist, can only be guessed at. But this species of national aggression grows by immunity.

The friends of the League of Nations naturally feel some concern as to the exceedingly inconspicuous, if not, indeed, ineffective, part played by that organization in the temporary settlement of the Greco-Italian situation. The settlement, such as it is, was effected by the Council of Ambassadors-the tribunal which Mussolini himself insisted should handle it. Prior to action by this Council, the League indeed suggested that the whole matter should be passed on to that body. It is probable that the League did exercise some influence over that body by expressing the sentiment of the group of smaller nations terrified by Italy's outbreak. But people will ask whether the Council of Ambassadors would not have so acted had there been no League in existence. It would further be inquired whether anything has been done by the League to determine the justice of Mussolini's challenge of League authority. He raised the two issues, that the League could not deal with acts growing out of an assault upon a nation's honor, and, furthermore, that Greece, being under control of a government still unrecognized by many nations, the United States among them, had no standing in the League. Neither of these questions has been determined, and apparently it is not the purpose of the League to consider them.

At the moment of the assault of Italy upon Greece, the Monitor asserted that the issues growing out of it would form the first serious test as to the usefulness of the League of Nations. If it proved itself incapable of grappling with these issues in a way to command the respect of the nations which were members of its body, and of the United States as well, its very existence would be put in jeopardy. We find no reason to alter this opinpresence of the seeming check which has been put upon League activities in this connection. To say that peace prevails is no answer to the criticism, for that peace, such as it is, was effected by the action of a body entirely distinct from the League of Nations. It apparently was obtained by a virtual surrender to all of the demands of the aggressor in an assault upon a nation's integrity which was as thoroughly indefensible as the Austrian attack upon Serbia which led to the World War. There is yet opportunity for the League to prove its worth by investigating the facts attendant upon this assault and offering its findings for the judgment of its constituent members.

It is particularly gratifying to those friends of the Irish Free State who have been watching its progress onward and upward in its march toward national unity that its recent admission to the League of Nations was unanimous. In this way no slightest cloud marred the horizon, as it was received by the world, in a larger sense than heretofore, as one of the nations of the earth. It was indeed, moreover, a hopeful augury for Ireland's future, as Desmond Fitzgerald, who is in charge of the foreign affairs of his country, said in commenting on this forward step. That Ireland has in the past been enveloped in a miasma of misunderstanding is undeniable, and now that it is emerging from the oblivion in which it was thereby submerged. it is the more fitting that it is finding its freedom welcomed with cordiality and good-fellowship everywhere.

Ireland's Forward Step

Mr. Fitzgerald, when addressing the journalists of many lands assembled at Geneva, was eloquent in his declaration that his countrymen wanted to give of their best to the world, and to receive of the world's best in return. That the world stands ready to give of its best. provided there is a receptiveness apparent in the Irish thought wherewith to accept it, Ireland will, it may be hoped, assuredly find. Ireland must itself, however, sink all partisan differences in the desire for the common good of its citizens as a whole. It has at last obtained its long-sought liberty, and the hope of all those who have the well-being of that country at heart is certainly that Mr. Fitzgerald's further assurance will be justified by the facts, and that his country will henceforth be considered and prove itself a thoroughly peace-loving

It is, of course, a sad commentary upon the struggles in which Ireland has been involved during the last century that during that period of time its population has diminished from the neighborhood of 10,000,000 to less than 5,000,000. The influence of emigration must, however, always be reckoned with, when considering such an apparent decrease of inhabitants. It is now up to Ireland to make good its new-found freedom without loss of time, remembering what Paul said in his epistle to the Philippians regarding "... forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before. . . . '

Last summer the dollar was worth at times between 10 and 11 French francs. Last week it hovered in New York between 17 and 18. In the middle of August the British pound was worth 82 francs in Paris. In June, 1922, it could be had for less than 50. In this downward course the French medium of exchange has been followed by the Belgian, which is worth slightly less. Though Swiss francs have declined a little since last year, they are still close to par. The Spanish peseta and the Italian lira have also gone down somewhat in respect to the dollar and the pound, but nowhere nearly in the same proportion as the French and Belgian francs.

What is the reason? The French and Belgian newspapers, trying to reassure their readers, assert that this decline is in no way justified by the economic and financial situations of the two countries. French foreign commerce, writes for instance the Temps, is flourishing both as to value and quantity. Exports are greater than before the war, and the excess value of imports over exports was for the first half of this year less than 500,000,000 francs, a decided gain over last year. This unfavorable balance of trade, moreover, is probably more than offset by the "invisible" exports-that is, money spent in France by foreign tourists, who this year have been more numerous than ever. French taxes are yielding well, the collections for the first six months of this year being over a billion greater than during the corresponding period of last year. Crops in France, as almost everywhere else in Europe, promise to be abundant. Enough wheat has been raised in France so that next season no imports are believed necessary. The savings will in that case be over 1,000,000,000 francs. During the past year, moreover, there has been no further inflation of the regular

A similar story comes from Belgium. During the past three years there has been no increase in the paper money in circulation. Through taxation, which for the first six months of 1923 yielded an increase of 313,000.-000 francs, the budget has been balanced. The crops show a gain; shipping and industries are active. Travelers agree that Belgium has made the greatest progress in repairing war damages. Special commercial treaties have been concluded with a number of countries. And yet the pound has been worth at Brussels this summer over 100 Belgian francs. In New York the Belgian franc was rated last week at about 41/2 cents. Last summer its exchange value was at times twice that. For 100 French francs the Belgians have had to pay this summer 125 of their own, though at par they are the same. The average price last year was 106.45.

These declines the French and Belgian press blame on speculation, hinting that foreign interests are thereby trying to put pressure on the two governments in their reparations policies. Both at London and Amsterdam French and Belgian francs have been offered in such quantities that there are reasons to suppose that speculators are selling "short" so as to bring the exchange values down. Premier Poincaré repeatedly asserts that "international finance" is hostile to his country. But do financiers act from political or sentimental motives? If they sell francs short, do they not guess that the policies pursued by France and Belgium are going to aggravate still further their financial situations? The Brussels correspondent of the Temps admits that this summer even the Belgian peasants lost faith in their own currency, so that they bought dollars and pounds with their savings. A law had to be passed restricting the purchases of foreign money to the needs of importers. The value of paper money depends, of course, on faith in the political wisdom of the government issuing it, and the money market is, as is commonly recognized, an extremely sensitive political barometer.

Broad scope is outlined for the discussions scheduled to take place at the sessions of the fifty-third annual congress of the American Prison Association this week in Boston. Distinguished penologists of the United States and several European and Asiatic countries will be present to discuss and listen to theories and experiences of prison government. It is reassuring that in all gatherings of this character in recent years, perhaps more than formerly, discussion turns generally rather to methods of crime prevention and the rehabilitation of those persons adjudged guilty of some infraction of the law, than to means of punishment. The field of rehabilitation has been found a fruitful one, though it was too long untilled. It has been shown that even those who have been regarded as habitual offenders are responsive to right influence when the way of reformation has been made plain. An important sectional conference will be that conducted under the auspices of the National Probation Association. In recent years great progress has been made in the undertaking to save the first offenders from the contaminating influences which surround them in the environment of prisons filled with pastmasters in crime. Gradually the way is being found by which trial judges are able to mitigate, in the first instance, the penalty which the law formerly presumed would be meted out without consideration or reasonable discretion whenever a verdict of guilty was returned. In spite of the fact that some penologists of the older school still insist that mercy is too often shown where the strong arm of the law should be allowed to exact its fullest penalty, there is a growing weight of public opinion in support of a carefully directed but flexible administration of the probationary system.

It is probable that it will be made to appear at the sessions of the conference that the gradually lessening prison populations, attributable to the enforcement of the prohibition law closing the saloons, has made it possible for wardens and welfare workers in the penitentiaries and houses of correction to devote more attention to the reformation of individual prisoners than was possible when the institutions were crowded to their capacity. When it is remembered that this work of restoration or rehabilitation is one which can only be accomplished finally by the individual, it is made plain that in the last analysis the office of the warden, the probation officer. and the social worker, is like that of a teacher. The processes by which reformation is to be accomplished must be made plain by a patient and considerate exposition thereof.

It is at such gatherings as this in Boston that an intelligent comparison of methods and results is made possible. That a thousand or more unselfish and hopeful reformers are anxious to avail themselves of this opportunity is an encouraging sign of the times.

IT SEEMS unlikely that there will be any more "Mosher books," so completely did their inception depend upon the personality of their maker, Mr. Thomas Bird Mosher, of Portland, Me. "At the outset," wrote Mr. Mosher, in a foreword to one of his matchless catalogues, "I only wanted to make a few beautiful books, and to that end could think of nothing more suited to my purpose than what I have chosen: the things I loved and desired others to love." There we have the kernel of the whole matter. For Mr. Mosher, guided by his personal inclinations, confidently offered the public the opportunty to enjoy what he enjoyed. And discerning readers, accepting his gracious invitation, were the sharers of his impeccable taste.

Whatever issued from this publishing house bore the stamp of its founder's engaging personality. A glance at one of his catalogues, compiled and annotated by his own hand-Mr. Richard Le Gallienne has referred to Mr. Mosher's "catalogue raisonné lifted into the region of poetry"-gives some hint of the supreme quality and the generous scope of his literary intimacies. He began with a little-known work of George Meredith's, and he continued with other material then equally inaccessible to the man in the street—all of it, whether prose or poetry, of a stuff which had made its especial appeal to him. Thus, he rescued and preserved, in a form both convenient and inexpensive, many delectable morsels from masters of the English tongue. Also, by discovering and cultivating hitherto unfamiliar talent, he furthered the fame of Arthur Symons, Walter Pater, and Fiona McLeod, and introduced his public to the verse of Lizette Woodworth Reese. The same insight penetrated the little monthly issues of The Bibelot which, as he said, existed "to bring together the poesie of other men bound by a thread of one's own choosing.'

It is easy to contend that Mr. Mosher sailed distressingly close to the wind in the matter of the copyright laws; we believe it was Mr. Andrew Lang who never forgave the American publisher for what he termed his sin of "literary piracy" in bringing out an edition of that English writer's translation of "Aucassin and Nicolete." Then, again, his format, with its delicately tinted bindings, ivory vellums, and Japan papers, almost confined the tiny books to the shelves of the boudoir. Yet, these things become insignificant when we remember the invaluable service which Mr. Mosher rendered to English readers all over the world.

Editorial Notes

THE MONITOR is not informed as to the extent to which Mr. Will H. Hays is circulating the "clipsheet" which he addresses to "members of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc." But we believe that in it he has a force for accomplishing real good in that field. The sheet is made up of editorial comment, both favorable and unfavorable, upon the methods of the motion picture industry. There is no apparent effort to suppress criticism or to stress applause. and the sheet as it comes to this office is a fair reflection of public sentiment. The producer can get at a glance an estimate of the degree to which low-class films or methods bring out journalistic reprobation, and the amount of newspaper approval that attends every effort toward a higher standard. In brief, it outlines to the leaders of a great industry the nature of public sentiment affecting their endeavors, and if they fail to read it aright and respond accordingly they will inevitably be the sufferers. ***** * . *

THE Waltham (Mass.) policeman who the other day made five boys get soap, scrubbing brushes, and pails of hot water from their homes and clean their crayon drawings and hieroglyphics off the walls of some business buildings which they had decorated should be given a job as custodian of Cardinal Wolsey's room at Hampton Court, England, which has recently been opened to the public. In this room there are some highly important inscriptions cut on the stonework, especially in the mantelpiece of the inner room, and already the public has begun to poke at them and fill them in with pencil markings. The result will inevitably be, unless some preventive measure is instituted quite soon, that the stonework will be broken away and that these inscriptions, which have been hidden for some three or four hundred years, will lose all their value and importance.

Amusing Provincialisms By ROLAND CORTHELL

THERE is hardly anything more interesting than the study of language, its origin, growth, and changes. If you doubt it, read Archbishop Trench's "English, Past and Present.

And there is hardly anything more entertaining than the contemplation of the myriad variations, which are limited to certain localities, perhaps to certain villages even, queer expressions which are perfectly unintelligible to those living only a few miles away.

I well remember the mystification of a Boston young lady who visited my home quite a number of years ago, and I lived in a town only twenty miles from "The Hub," At the dinner table one day, I casually remarked that I had heard some interesting news, namely, that Bert Jones had told me that Jim Smith was setting up with Mary Green. "What's the matter with her?" was asked by our visitor. "Why, nothing." I said, Jim's paying attention to her, courting her, you might call it." Yes, "setting up with" was the universal phrase used by us to express the fact that a man was seeking to win the affection of the lady of his choice, and that matters had reached the point where he regularly visited her in her home and sat up with her as long as custom or the girl's parents permitted.

One of the queerest words used in my home and, without doubt, in those of my neighbors, was that applied to that toothsome circular product of the culinary art with a hole in the center. We didn't call it a "doughnut" but, strange to say, a 'cymbal" (pronounced sim-ball). At least one man who didn't live in my village had heard the word and that was Oliver Wendell Holmes, who refers to it somewhere in his prose writings, and you will find it in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary listed as "obsolete." I'd give a good deal to know

There was another queer provincialism that flourished in my youth. Instead of underwear or underclothes we said "robins." Along about April my faithful mother would say to me, "Well, my son, isn't it about time you put on your spring robins?" It is easy to trace the word to the French "robe, but I never heard it anywhere but in my own town.

A strange use of a common word prevailed in our church. I've heard a hundred times a notice from the pulpit like this: "A-female prayer meeting will be held next Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jones." I wonder the women did not rise up in rebellion, and their husbands, too, at this particularly contemptuous designation.

The strangest provincialism of all, I think, was the method chosen to discriminate between two married women who had the same Christian name, for we never used the surnames of our neighbors if it could be helped. Suppose there were two Marys in the village, one the wife of Richard Jenkins, the other of Joseph Smith. We didn't distinguish them as Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Smith. Oh, no! That was too formal. We got around it very easily and avoided all complications and misunderstandings. Mrs. Jenkins was known as "Mary Richard" and Mrs. Smith as "Mary Joseph." Perfectly intelligible and absolutely accurate! The climax was in the case of Elizabeth Smith, who married James Brown. She was soon universally known as "Betsy Jim," there being another Elizabeth in

Why a World Government Must Come

EUROPE, as a whole, is an experiment in force, says Lincoln Steffens in The Century Magazine. The war was an explosion thereof. It blew up the whole laboratory, and a chemist would have inferred that the mixture he had made was explosive. He would not have blamed some poor workman; he wouldn't even have said that glycerin was "bad" and that nitrogen was "good." Not in chemistry. But in politics, he did. Einstein, the German astronomer, was pro-German. Bergson, the French philosopher, was loyal. The professors everywhere were patriotic. They did not ask what caused the war. "Who?" was the question they asked and answered

And so we have the statesmen who "made the war" making the peace, and consistently trying to carry out in their treaties the "just purposes of the war," and, suppressing all new ideas, begin laboring conscientiously and hard to set up the very same combination of social, economic, and political elements which, having exploded before, is apt to explode again, as it does. That's peace by force, an old theory of ours that we can make peace without removing the cause of war by an international organization of military and police powers to force the unorganized mass of men to respect and not disturb the sources

A world government is inevitable. It must come, because there is international business now; there are functions for a supergovernment to perform, functions no one state can per-

The Responsibilities of Every Scholar

THERE are, I think, two relationships in which the scholar feels and acknowledges responsibility, writes Alexander Meiklejohn in The Century Magazine. The first and lesser of these is the relation to other teachers and scholars, to other seekers after the truth. The second and greater responsibility is that which "we" feel and acknowledge toward the truth itself.

The lesser responsibility is immediate and certain. Every scholar has regard for the judgment of other scholars. There is a fellowship of learning in which all alike are enrolled, an enterprise of learning in which all are engaged. And in this enterprise each worker is responsible to his fellow-workers. What he may do depends upon what they have done. Upon what he does they try to build. And as they build, sooner or later they find him out. If his work is straight and true, it stands their test; if it is weak and false, they put him aside as one who has failed them in the common task. Within the fellowship of scholars each scholar is responsible.

But the second responsibility, though more remote, is still more urgent and compelling. As against the truth which scholars have there is the truth for which they strive, which never is achieved. It is in terms of this that final judgment must be given. In terms of this each man must wait assessment of his work, the measuring of the value of the thinking he has done. What have you done for truth? for knowledge? is the major question. Here is, I think, our real responsibility.

America's Policy in Porto Rico

IT WOULD be premature to characterize our (America's) first twenty-five years in Porto Rico as either success or failure, writes Arthur Warner in The Century Magazine. Better call it an experiment, still continuing. Our policy for a quarter of a century has been not to have any. I am glad of it. For if we had had one, it would have been wrong. We were too inexperienced in external affairs in 1898, too much the victims of an ingrowing national complacency, to chart a safe course in Porto Rico. Perhaps we have learned something in the meanwhile. The next twenty-five years will give the answer.
